Province woos new tourists

Spending bump.

New, pricier campaign aims to reverse slow decline in visitors across Nova Scotia

RUTH DAVENPORT

ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

The province has unveiled a tourism advertising campaign that doubles spending for online ads in hopes of luring more first-time visitors to Nova Scotia.

Tourism Minister Percy Paris revealed the Take Yourself There campaign Wednesday, touting Nova Scotia as the perfect "road-trip" destination.

"Nova Scotia ... is a road-tripper's paradise. Diverse, compact, full of amazing things to see and to do," said Percy at an event in Purcell's Cove. "We want to build on that reputation, and this campaign is going to help us do just that."

By the numbers

Annual revenue generated by the tourism industry in Nova Scotia.

Tourism has fallen by about one per cent a year over the last decade in Nova Scotia, with a noticeable drop in the number of first-time visitors — prompting the decision to focus the campaign on that audience.

"Those first-timers ... will grow it all, not just for tourism, but for the entire economy of N.S. as they continue to mill around, linger longer and spend more money," said Donna Hatt, marketing manager at White Point.

The $5-million campaign, launching earlier than previous initiatives, includes print and television ads in European markets, the United States, Ontario and — for the first time in three years — Quebec.

"We have reallocated some of our regional money to Quebec to get those first-time visitors, because we know those visitors spend an average of $1,700 per party and stay an average of six days," said Nova Scotia Tourism Agency CEO Patrick Sullivan.

Sullivan said the beefed-up content — which represents a 15 per cent increase in spending — is meant to lure outdoor enthusiasts to "every corner" of the province.

"We want them to visit Nova Scotia and we want them to travel around the province in frankly the most circuitous route possible," he said.

The digital component is also significantly larger than in previous years, with a "refresh" of the novascotia.com website and a new tourism app for tablets and smartphones.

NSHCC. Let orphanage claimants be heard: Dexter

While a public inquiry may not be the right process for alleged victims of the Nova Scotia Home for Colored Children, Premier Darrell Dexter says he wants "the voices of everyone to be heard."

Following a press conference in Dartmouth for the Canadian Red Cross, Dexter said he received a letter from the claimants on Monday after the government had asked their opinion on the best course of action.

"We said we'd like to have your advice around what you think a constructive, healing reconciliation process could look like, as opposed to a compensation program," Dexter said.

He said although the home where more than 100 people have claimed they suffered physical and emotional abuse is not in his riding, he is "directly adjacent" and has a personal interest in the file.

Asked specifically about a public inquiry, Dexter said inquiries have a "very specific meaning" under legislation, and other measures could be taken.

"They want a process that is complete enough to give voice to the concerns they've had, but one that's also going to reach beyond just a question of inquiry and try to bring back together a community that is divided," Dexter said of the alleged victims.

"What I want to see is something that allows for the voices of everyone to be heard. That's what we're really looking for."

Government pitching in $800,000 for Red Cross centre

HALEY RYAN

The campaign for a new disaster-management centre in Dartmouth got a helping hand on Wednesday when the province announced it will give $800,000 to the Canadian Red Cross.

Premier Darrell Dexter made the announcement with Denise Peterson-Rafuse, the minister of community services.

"The Red Cross here has, of course, an amazing legacy, an amazing history, and what this means is it's going to have an amazing future as well," Dexter said. "This is the first facility of its kind in Canada."

The centre will have the capacity to train 75 to 80 volunteers at a time, plus many more through video-conferences. The existing building can handle only 15 people per course, and about 30 people in the "situation room" during emergencies, said John Byrne, director of national disaster management with the Red Cross.

"We realized that it needs to be much bigger than this, and we need to have a training environment," Byrne said. "We have the resources to bring services from around the world to support us."

Byrne said it's important to have a centre in Nova Scotia, since our province "bears the brunt" of many storms moving up the coast from the United States.

"Disasters that happen in Canada are no different from ones that happen anywhere else," he said. "They involve people, and they involve broken assets, and how do we clean that up after the fact," Byrne said.

Also unveiled was the design for the building, which will be an addition to the current centre in Burnside.

"We will have the same level of training here in Nova Scotia as we do across the country," Byrne said.

He said $2.4 million has been raised for the building campaign, with a goal of $3 million. He hopes the centre will be open next year.

MacKinnon offered staffer a bonus if she bought his car, court told

MLA trial. Former Cape Breton politician one of four charged in expense scandal

A former Liberal cabinet minister charged in Nova Scotia's spending scandal allegedly offered an employee a bonus if she agreed to buy his Dodge Intrepid, one of a series of complex transactions that his trial heard about Wednesday.

Nicole Campbell, 31, said she did secretarial work for Russell MacKinnon at his Sydney River constituency office from January 2005 until June 2006.

In October 2005, MacKinnon offered her a financial incentive to buy his car, a mid-1990s Dodge Intrepid, she said.

"He called and said he could get me a $3,000 bonus if I agreed to purchase his car," she told the Nova Scotia Supreme Court in Halifax.

She agreed and took possession of the car. But she said she never saw any of the money MacKinnon offered.

"I never had the money in my hands," she said. "Russell dealt with it."

MacKinnon, who has pleaded not guilty to fraud, breach of trust and uttering forged documents, also asked her that fall to sign off on three blank receipts that were later submitted to the Speaker's Office, Campbell said.

Crown lawyer Mark Hareema said MacKinnon was later reimbursed by the Speaker's Office for secretarial services and expenses in three instalments totalling $3,400 from September to December.

Campbell said she never received any of that money and did not incur any expenses.

Under cross-examination by defence lawyer Joel Pink, Campbell began crying when he called into question her recollection of events.

Pink told the court she didn't tell the RCMP that she never received money, and instead told the Mounties that she didn't remember what the charges on the receipts were for.

MacKinnon's judge-only trial is scheduled to last until Monday. Pink has said he won't decide what witnesses to call, if any, until the Crown completes its case. THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Tillman investigation

RCMP release more photos of stolen artifacts

Do you know where your antique torch is?

RCMP have added more photos to a long list of pictures of stolen artifacts recently recovered in Fall River, including a torch, German medals and an antique hockey jersey.

On Wednesday, RCMP released 10 photos of artifacts discovered in the investigation of John Tillman's property.

Tillman was arrested in January and charged with possession of stolen property after officers searched his home and found over 800 valuable artifacts from collections around Atlantic Canada.

He has since been charged with 27 further offences, including trafficking and forgery.

In a press release, RCMP say due to the volume and importance of the stolen items, they expect the investigation will take months to complete.

Anyone who recognizes or can provide information about an artifact is asked to call the RCMP at 426-1607.

WestJet to fly more through Halifax

Air up there.

Currently, nine flights leave per day

Ninth busiest

- Gregg Saretsky said Halifax is "under-indexed" in terms of WestJet's service, saying it's the ninth-busiest airport served by the airline.

RUTH DAVENPORT
ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

WestJet's CEO says the airline is planning to more than double the number of daily departures out of Halifax over the next four years.

Gregg Saretsky told a Halifax Chamber of Commerce luncheon that the launch of its regional carrier WestJet Encore will boost the number of departures from Halifax Stanfield International Airport from nine to 20 by 2017.

"Some of the opportunities that we're looking at are increased capacity in southern markets ... new routes both within the region and on the trans-border and internationally," said Saretsky. "So we've got a nice game plan that includes doing more of the things that you've asked us to."

WestJet Encore will offer brand new routes and connections between existing WestJet cities on a fleet of 78-seat Bombardier Q400 turboprops. The airline will launch in western Canada in late June.

In terms of overall plans, Saretsky said WestJet will soon respond to concerns about higher prices and a lack of business class. WestJet passengers will have the option of "unbundled fares" — giving passengers the option of a lower base, but with charges for baggage and other extras — and of travelling in "premium economy" seats, which provide the same leg room as Air Canada's business class.

"They will be offered at a small premium over our existing pricing, which puts our premium economy at roughly a 50 per cent discount to Air Canada's business class," said Saretsky.

David Wilson. Minister tells health boards to prepare for funding freeze

The province has told the province's nine health districts and the IWK Health Centre to prepare for a funding freeze.

Health Minister David Wilson says it is unsustainable to rapidly increase health-care funding.

Wilson says he's asked the health boards to spend their money and resources more efficiently while also ensuring a high level of patient care.

Health-care funding represents about 40 per cent of provincial spending, or about $3.8 billion.

The spring budget will be delivered April 4.

'Terrible day.' Province rejects new fish farm, cites risk to wild salmon

The Nova Scotia government is turning its back on rural communities and throwing away dozens of jobs by rejecting an application for a fish farm in Shoal Bay, aquaculture company Snow Island Salmon said Wednesday.

Shane Borthwick, vice-president of operations, said it was a "terrible day" for the company, adding that the decision has jeopardized the firm's future.

"We've brought money and talent to this province, provided a strong, sustainable sea-farming model and are now facing the most serious threat to the viability of our business at the hands of the government that invited us here in the first place," he said in a statement.

The province's minister of fisheries and aquaculture, Sterling Belliveau, said Fisheries and Oceans Canada expressed concern about the salmon farm's impact on wild salmon in the bay near Sheet Harbour during the 22-month

Criticism

Snow Island criticized the government's handling of the application, saying the decision was unexpected and did not appear to be based on science.

review process.

The federal department said the site would represent a moderate risk to wild salmon. The province said it is the first time Fisheries and Oceans has described a proposed fish farm as representing a moderate risk to wild salmon.

Belliveau said the province's decision is not a sign that the government is changing its support for fish farms, which was part of its aquaculture strategy released last year.

He said the government believes the aquaculture industry can help rural Nova Scotia's economy.

Local talent to spice up symphony's new season

Symphony Nova Scotia's 2013-14 season will have a distinctive local flavour to it.

Fans of the symphony got a preview of things to come next season at Wednesday's 2013-14 program launch at the Rebecca Cohn Auditorium.

Joining the symphony on stage next season are the likes of local rocker Joel Plaskett, Ashley MacIsaac, Mo Kenney and Jane Archibald.

Kenney and Plaskett will perform on Oct. 24 and 25 as part of Halifax Pop Explosion, while MacIsaac will perform Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2014. Archibald is taking the stage next year on May 1 and 4.

phony's music director, said he's excited about the local talent he'll get to work with, especially Archibald, one of the world's most famous sopranos.

"(The season) will be really heavy on Nova Scotia artists but it will culminate with a big festival featuring Jane Archibald," Gueller said.

Other highlights include a performance with 14-year-old Canadian pianist Anastasia Rizikov and the return of legendary conductor Howard Cable, 93, who is bringing hits from the swing era to the stage.

"Programming is a big factor (in) what we do and what we perform," Gueller said. "There is no doubt that we have a world-class symphony ... right here in Halifax, and we should support it."

Euphoria: Cheers ring out from the crowd in St Peter's Square in Rome as white smoke is sighted rising from the Sistine Chapel's chimney.

LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

'From the end of the Earth,' a new Pope!

'Good evening.'

After one of the fastest conclaves in decades, an ecstatic world greets the new man in the Vatican

Habemus Papam — We have a pope!

A cacophony of welcome swept the world on Wednesday after Jorge Bergoglio of Argentina was elected Pope in a conclave that ended with astonishing speed.

"Brothers and sisters, good evening," the new Pope Francis — looking stunned — said shyly from the loggia of St. Peter's Basilica to wild cheers.

"You know that the work of the conclave is to give a bishop to Rome," he went on.

"It seems as if my brother cardinals went to find him from the end of the Earth, but here we are. Thank you for the welcome."

Bergoglio, 76, becomes the first pontiff from the Americas and the first from outside Europe in more than a millennium.

And by choosing the name Francis, he associates himself with the humble 13th-century Italian preacher who lived a life of poverty.

Across the planet, Latin Americans burst into tears and jubilation at the news that the region, which counts 40 per cent of the world's Catholics, finally had a pope

Quoted

"We have Messi and we have the Pope now!"

Jubilant Gabriela Pisquariello, an owner of the Bueno Aires Bakery and Café in Miami's Little Buenos Aires, referring to star Argentine soccer player Lionel Messi to call its own.

"It's a huge gift for all of Latin America. We waited 20 centuries. It was worth the wait," said Jose Antonio Cruz, a Franciscan friar in the Old San Juan district in Puerto Rico.

Elected on the fifth ballot, Francis was chosen in one of the fastest conclaves in years, remarkable given there was no clear front-runner going into the vote and that the church had been in turmoil following the upheaval of Pope Benedict's resignation.

Tens of thousands of people who braved cold rain to watch the smokestack atop the Sistine Chapel jumped in joy when white smoke poured out.

Many shouted "Habemus Papam!" or "We have a pope!" — as the bells of St. Peter's Basilica and churches across Rome pealed.

After what seemed an unending wait of more than an hour, they cheered again when the doors to the loggia opened.

The cheers became deafening when Bergoglio's name was announced.

The cleric who cares is elected to lead the church into a new era

New pontiff rode the bus and helped the destitute

As a much-loved cardinal, Jorge Mario Bergoglio — the new Pope Francis — often rode the bus and visited the poor.

He was known all over Argentina for caring for the destitute and homeless.

Bergoglio was born in December, 1936, in Buenos Aires, one of five children of an Italian railway worker.

He had a lung removed when he was a teenager due to an infection.

He studied chemistry and then philosophy at university before teaching literature and psychology.

He joined the Jesuit order in 1958 and was ordained a priest in 1969.

From 1973 to 1979 he served as the Jesuit provincial in Argentina, then in 1980 became the rector of the seminary where he studied.

He served there until 1986 after which he completed his doctorate in Germany and returned to Argentina.

He was appointed Buenos Aires City Archbishop in February 1998 and made cardinal by John Paul II in February 2001.

Bergoglio created new parishes, restructured administrative offices and begun new pastoral projects, helping to recover the church's traditional influence in society.

His legacy as cardinal includes repairing the reputation of a church that failed to challenge Argentina's 1976-83 military dictatorship.

Garneau drops out, supports Trudeau

Federal Liberal leadership. 'I cannot mathematically win,' former contender says

Marc Garneau dropped out of the federal Liberal leadership race on Wednesday and threw his support to front-runner Justin Trudeau, declaring the outcome "a fait accompli."

The Montreal MP's decision followed an internal poll conducted by his campaign last week, which Garneau said showed Trudeau has the backing of 72 per cent of Liberal members and supporters.

Garneau said he was a "solid second" with 15 per cent, followed by Vancouver MP Joyce Murray with just over seven per cent and former Toronto MP Martha Hall Findlay with just over five per cent.

"I have done my numbers. I cannot mathematically — and I'm a person who believes in math — I cannot mathematically win," Garneau told a news conference.

MP Marc Garneau

"I'm not into denial. The numbers indicate very clearly that Justin is the overwhelming favourite."

However, Murray said she puts no stock in Garneau's survey, the methodology of which her camp finds highly suspect. She said it won't influence her decision to continue her campaign, which has enjoyed a late burst of momentum.

Garneau's automated phone poll asked 6,000 Liberal supporters and members to indicate whether they favoured Garneau, Trudeau, Hall Findlay or Murray.

It was not a survey of registered voters.

Murray said she was surprised by Garneau's decision to endorse Trudeau, given that he has repeatedly said a coronation is not in the party's best interests and has accused the front-runner of lacking policy depth, experience and leadership credentials.

Worried that some 100,000 people who didn't provide email addresses — the bulk of whom are Trudeau supporters — will be disenfranchised, the front-runner is seeking a one-week extension of Thursday's registration deadline. The Murray, Hall Findlay and Martin Cauchon camps oppose an extension. THE CANADIAN PRESS

What (or who) do Justin Bieber, Ryan Gosling and Avril Lavigne have in common? Turns out they are all related to a 17th-century French couple who settled in Canada nearly 400 years ago! Ancestry.ca's researchers connected the branches of these Canadian cousins. And, of course, what would a Canuck family tree be without a Celine Dion cameo?

The sexy cousin

Ryan Gosling

An 11th cousin once removed from Justin is none other than heart throb Ryan Gosling. The Oscar nominee and the Juno winner are related through Mahurin Roy and Marguerite Biré, who immigrated from France to Quebec in the mid-1600s.

Avril Lavigne

Both Canadian singers, who started their road to stardom when they were teens, share a common family ancestor that goes back 400 years to some of Quebec's earliest settlers. According to Ancestry.ca researchers, Lavigne and the Biebs are 12th cousins.

Cyber-crime. Going away? Don't bank on the Wi-Fi

Travellers should be wary of cyber-threats on vacation as they access free wireless networks with their smartphones, tablets or laptops, says software security company Symantec Corp.

Canadians travelling for March break and into the summer season shouldn't be doing things like pulling up their bank accounts on Wi-Fi networks, said Lynn Hargrove, director of consumer solutions for Symantec Canada.

"What people don't realize is that there's no security on those Wi-Fi networks for the most part," she said. "It's a great way to keep in touch while you're on vacation, but there are some inherent risks that come with it that people just aren't thinking about."

Symantec has found that two in 10 Canadians pull up their bank accounts on free Wi-Fi networks in Canada.

According to the firm's 2012 Norton Cybercrime report, travellers are often victimized through their mobile devices while abroad, often by text messages. "We're seeing a lot of fraudulent texts asking you to click on a link or go and dial a number to retrieve a voice mail," Hargrove said.

And the wealth of information stored on a smartphone — pictures, texts, emails, contact lists, work documents, banking information — can be valuable to cyber-criminals if stolen or lost, Hargrove said.

'Tablet for women' targets Middle East consumers

Pink, perky, pandering. Pre-loaded apps cover yoga, perfume, cooking and grocery shopping

LUKE SIMCOE

The world's "first tablet for women," complete with a pink background and weight-loss apps, is being condemned as sexist.

Eurostar Group, the Middle East-based creator of the device, says the ePad Femme is designed for a woman's "diverse lifestyle." Based on the pre-loaded selection of apps, that lifestyle includes shopping for groceries, cooking and doing yoga.

Speaking with the Jerusalem Post, Eurostar spokesperson Mani Nair said the Android-powered device "makes a perfect gadget for a woman who might find difficulties in terms of downloading these applications." Nair insisted nothing about the tablet was sexist, and compared it to similar products geared towards gamers.

However, others disagree.

"There have always been special books for women concerning sex, how to please your husband, and what to cook for him," Eman Al Nafjan, a Saudi feminist blogger told the Post.

"This is just using technology for the same thing."

In Saudi Arabia, women are often highly educated, but not allowed to drive or travel without a male escort. As a result, Al Nafjan says they spend a lot of time online and are fully capable of downloading their own apps.

"Whoever made this tablet doesn't understand us very well," she said. "We are home all the time and we are extremely tech-savvy."

Eurostar has sold about 7,000 units of the tablet since its October launch.

CURLY FRIES STRAIGHTEN THINGS OUT

After a nonstop string of feel-good stories and glowing press, Facebook — the little company that could — has finally been hit with some criticism.

The heretofore infallible website stumbled into the media spotlight for the first time this week when it was revealed that its users might have reason for some — wait for it — privacy concerns. It turns out that hitting “like” on certain Facebook groups or events can reveal more about you to advertisers than might be apparent.

Strike 1, am I right?

A University of Cambridge study (like it on Facebook!) showed that running somebody’s Facebook likes through a computer program could give you a decent indicator of that user’s gender, race, religion and sexual orientation, not to mention their favourite colour, tooth health, Super Mario high score, social-security number and how good they are in bed (within five per cent).

HE SAYS
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

You might be tempted to call it a modern-day horoscope, but it’s just the opposite, because it works.

For instance, it was shown that you could predict a high-IQ in a user if they liked thunderstorms, The Colbert Report, science and curly fries. Facebook users who liked the group Eating Curly Fries While Watching Thunderstorm Science on The Colbert Report were mostly employees at the CERN particle accelerator in Geneva.

(It should be noted, though, that the spuds-smarts relationship might just be a coincidence, highlighting the classic logical fallacy of mistaking curly fries for causation.)

The researchers said that most of the computer’s predictions were made through indirect connections — it wasn’t guessing people were homosexual and Muslim because they liked Homosexuality is Halal (real group!). Instead it was, for instance, successfully predicting homosexuality from choices such as liking the TV show Glee.

I’d argue the bigger privacy concern for somebody who “likes” Glee is the fact it reveals you like Glee, but what do I know?

Other than the twist of the curly fries (ha!) this all seems straightforward to me. Many media outlets played up the report as if it was a shocker, but if you haven’t figured out by now that Facebook is going to peruse, parse and package your information any way that it sees fit, then there’s a Brooklyn Bridge auction on eBay we should discuss.

I’m no fan of Facebook. It’s clear from their many previous transgressions that Facebook (like Google) thinks privacy is passé, maybe even dishonest. The site’s new graph search that allows you to search for, say, “friends of friends who live in California and like Katy Perry and Nine Inch Nails” (23 results!) is so fascinating/jicky that it feels like a new type of pornography.

But it shouldn’t be a surprise anymore.

People will always have the right to raise privacy concerns, and the right to disconnect from Facebook, but if you’re surprised by their disregard for your privacy after almost a decade then there’s only one solution: Eat more curly fries. All will become clear in time.

Tornado is illusion under acidic water

It looks like a giant tornado is causing mayhem in the sky, but this image is simply the reflection of a river running through a mine.

To create this stunning moment, photographer Tomás Bogóñez has rotated the picture to appear like a huge fiery cyclone. The image was taken in Río Tinto river in Huelva, southwest Spain. METRO

“The texture of the river was mind-blowing, the bright colours and the reflection of the river were amazing to see.”

Tomás Bogóñez

Colours are metals and minerals

The area around Río Tinto has been mined for more than 5,000 years. After centuries of exploiting the site, the waterway has become very dense, acidic and low in oxygen.

NASA scientists have even studied the ecosystem because of its similarities to Mars. The river’s vibrant hues of red, ochre and violet are caused by the dissolved metals and minerals. METRO

Kimberly McAndrew’s cold-case still leaves family on pins and needles waiting for news: Sister

Kimberly McAndrew is my sister.

To many she is a missing person, a case file, a possible murder victim, an unsolved crime and a huge mystery.

To me she was my often entertaining, sometimes bossy, older sister.

She is held at the age of nineteen in my mind, full of plans and ideas and energy.

She had sweet dance moves that were sometimes a cross between Bambi on Ice and Elaine from Seinfeld. She did not like being wrong and hated to go anywhere alone.

I do not know Kim the mother or aunt or wife.

I don’t know if she would have had a boy and a girl and named them Cassandra and Nicholas as she swore she would (she was determined to be the cool mom and wanted to drive a convertible).

I didn’t get to see her university graduation or career choice or have her at my wedding. I have children who know her only through my memories and stories of growing up in the McAndrew family and the hilarity that often ensued.

They witness the laughter and eventual tears shed during the retelling of our adventures. They know their grandmother hugs them tightly each time she sees them because she knows the pain of not having a last goodbye.

Their grandfather was haunted by the fact that he was not able to protect his daughter from the unseen evil that stole her away from us and he would have walked through fire to save them any bit of pain in their life.

My siblings and I share a bond that is an impenetrable force.

We are no Brady Bunch, we don’t always get along and we are very different people personally-wise but we share the pain of having our sister taken from us suddenly, mysteriously and much too soon.

I sit on pins and needles along with the rest of my family every time an investigation is linked to her in the media, and sometimes I get sick of her being referred to as the McAndrew Case because Kimberly McAndrew is my sister.

Theatre. Jeremy Webb's talents shining on stage and off

BACKSTAGE PASS
Jenna Conter
halifax@metronews.ca

One of our theatre community's most treasured imports, Jeremy Webb, is taking to the stage in Dylan Thomas' Under Milk Wood.

Written in 1954 as a radio play, Webb describes this work as one of the most beautiful pieces of language. Hosted by Shakespeare By the Sea's Park Place Theatre, it's the perfect setting to tell the story of the fictional Welsh fishing village of Llareggub.

"It follows a 24-hour period of the town but you get to see behind the curtains, underneath the bed sheets and behind the closed doors," Webb said.

Starting on March 19 his company that he created in 2009 — Off the Leash Ltd. — is producing the entire endeavor.

Actor and producer, the United Kingdom native confesses that though he has also found success in writing, his fellow thespians notice how kindly he takes to the reins of his many projects.

"The joke among people I work with is that I was born in the wrong decade — I should have been a 1950s actor/manager, which was known to be a dictatorial role," he said. "I have very strong opinions."

And writing, Webb continues, is just plain hard.

Quoted

"I hadn't even heard of Halifax but I moved here and I loved it. A lot of people are always going up to Toronto and I'm always encouraging people to stay here."

Jeremy Webb

"I don't think any writer enjoys the process because it takes too much skill," he said.

"My process as a writer, with a producer's brain, is identifying what I need and want to create rather than sitting and waiting for inspiration."

Case in point: Fishing, an Off the Leash comedy about the world of Internet dating. In an interesting art-imitates-life-that-imitates-art play, Webb's character creates an online profile and commits to seven dates in seven days.

"I sought to write about that topic because I've had some experience in Internet dating and decided it would make a good play," he said.

"As it turns out I ended up meeting someone for real and now we have an 8 month old baby — I'm a great advocate for Internet dating."

Always the entrepreneur, Webb continues to lend his skills and now his Off the Leash brand to arts productions, corporate events, and charity organizations around our region.

From a man who had never heard of Halifax to his Neptune Theatre premiere in 1998's Blood Brothers, Webb has become one of our most well known art advocates.

Jeremy Webb is one of the busiest men on the Halifax arts scene. CONTRIBUTED

Twitter joke makes Beliebers go Wilde

Olivia Wilde has learned the hard way not to criticize Justin Bieber, as her post to Twitter earlier this month imploring the pop star to "put your f---ing shirt on" earned her more than 17,000 angry responses from Bieber fans.

"It's pretty much the funniest thing that's ever happened to me because my Twitter feed is now filled with the most hilarious abuse," she says during a visit to the Tonight Show with Jay Leno. "One of them was like, 'Are you a lesbian or are you too old?' That's great, because it's a question I never asked myself before."

Wilde is making light of the threats to her safety, telling CNN, "I'm going to get attacked with acid. Someone's going to throw acid in my face. If that happens, there are 35 million Beliebers that did it, so find them."

Shankman tells Us Weekly that since the couple's high-profile split last summer, the two are doing just swell.

"They are incredibly happy," Shankman says. "I've just been emailing with him. He's coming back. He's shooting (All You Need Is Kill) in London and seems as happy as a clam. I know he sees his daughter." As for Holmes? "Katie seems really happy," Shankman adds.

Diet Coke's 30th anniversary bottles and cans are getting some fashionable fizz with the help of designer Marc Jacobs. The toy-soldier-sized New Yorker talks sex, Kate Moss and refusing to compete with Tom Ford.

RICHARD PECKETT
Metro World News

How to open up a can of kickass

Marc his words.

The fashion world's favourite bad boy takes a moment from his mid-life crisis to chat with Metro

Next month you'll turn 50. What do you have planned for your mid-life crisis?

My mid-life crisis has been going on for 20 years. I don't see it as a crisis at all. I think it's quite an adventure — not a crisis for me. I'm not going to buy a Corvette or anything like that — I guess that's someone else's mid-life crisis.

You've said you don't have any big party plans but you seem to enjoy wearing some pretty outrageous outfits like that pink polo shirt dress. Do you enjoy getting dressed up?

I do enjoy it. I love attention. I'm very honest about it. There were years where I just didn't want to do press and I didn't really care about my appearance and I sort of shied away from things like that. But in order to enjoy them, I have to be me and sometimes that means wearing a pink dress, a lace dress or a kilt. Also, I feel like I need to relate to that joy and that ritual of going shopping and finding something to wear and then wearing it. I think being connected to that makes me a better designer. It's sort of like practising what you

Jacobs' Diet Coke designs were inspired by three decades of female empowerment: the '80s, '90s and '00s. PROVIDED preach. I wouldn't really be doing my job if I didn't do that.

What's your relationship like with Kate Moss?

Kate Moss? She just texted me. We've been on holiday together. We were in Ibiza a few years ago with her daughter (Lila Grace), (photographers) Mert (Alas) and Marcus (Piggott) and some friends of mine. I've spent a great deal of time with Kate over the years. We genuinely like each other — we just click.

Your last Louis Vuitton shows had sexual undertones. How does sex influence your work?

Sex is a big part of my life. It's a very big part of most people's lives whether they want to admit it or not. I don't know, sometimes when collections feel more personal there's more of an undercurrent of things that are of an emotional nature. When I dream, there's this darkness, this melancholy side, there's this sexual tension and then there's this kind of identity thing that goes on. An element of role-play and honesty. In the collections that I feel most proud, there are personal feelings and emotions that make it human.

You're in great shape and so is Tom Ford. Who's the bigger stud and why?

I don't know. I don't compete with Tom Ford. Tom's a friend of mine and I think Tom's terrific. He's a great looking guy and all of that but I certainly don't set out to compete with Tom (laughs). I wouldn't compare anything of mine to anything of his.

Are there too many designer collaborations?

No, no. It's always a two-way street. If nobody had any interest in designers doing cans and bottles for Coca-Cola, then Diet Coke wouldn't ask designers to do it. It's about supply and demand.

Do you think that fashion houses are creating too many collections these days?

It is too much but I don't actively participate in all of it to the same degree. I know when I'm most needed and that's when I rise to the occasion and I don't think any one person does do that much. They might say that they do but they don't.

Cigarettes, coffee and Diet

Coke, would you say that you've got an addictive personality?

Well, let's not put cigarettes in the same category as Diet Coke. Hmm, cigarette smoking is my bad habit, I'd say. It's my biggest vice and bad habit — I don't recommend it.

This is a delicious and versatile loaf that can be served at breakfast or brunch or for dessert at dinner.

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F. Spray a 9-x5-inch loaf pan with cooking oil.

Ingredients

- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 1 egg
- 2 tsp grated lemon rind
- 3 tbsp lemon juice
- 1/3 cup 2% milk
- 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 tbsp poppy seeds
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 1/2 tsp baking soda
- 1/2 cup 2% yogurt or light sour cream
- 1/4 cup icing sugar
- 2 tbsp lemon juice

This recipe serves 16. MARK SHAPIRO, FROM ROSE REISMAN'S COMPLETE LIGHT KITCHEN (WHITECAP BOOKS)

2. For cake, combine the granulated sugar, oil, egg, lemon rind and 3 tbsp juice in a large bowl or a food processor. Mix well. Add milk, mixing thoroughly.

3. Combine the flour, poppy seeds, baking powder and baking soda. Add to the wet mixture alternately with the yogurt, mixing just until incorporated. Do not overmix.

4. Pour into the prepared pan and bake for 35 to 40 minutes, or until a tester inserted in the centre of the cake comes out dry. Set the pan on a rack to cool for 10 minutes. The centre of the cake may sink slightly when it cools.

5. For a glaze, combine the icing sugar and 2 tbsp lemon juice. Prick holes in the top of the loaf with a fork or wooden skewer and pour the glaze over the loaf.

Five tips to ensure you get your deposit back

Renters, don't let your love affair with wallpaper prevent you from getting your hefty security deposit check back at the end of your lease.

You have to be smart tenants. Kari Taylor, director of rental insights at Rent.com, tells us how.

Read your lease

"This may seem like common sense, but so many renters miss the specific guidelines laid out by their landlord regarding the return of their deposit," she says. "A list should be made and agreed upon regarding the conditions of the apartment in the lease — before you sign it."

Take pictures of something other than food and sunsets

"Take some photos of the apartment when you first move in," Taylor suggests. "Make sure they are time- and date-stamped! Then repeat the process on move-out day. This way pre-existing damage is documented and the blame cannot fall on

Time to move on? Feel good about getting your deposit back. HANDOUT you."

Ask before you paint the walls red

"When renting, it is always best to get written permission from your landlord before doing any renovations, changing paint color, etc."

The pet amendment

"Landlords will often bend some of their lease rules for a trustworthy tenant or a special circumstance. If you agree upon an amendment to the lease (your miniature pooch can stay on the premises) make sure you both sign it and date it and, if at all possible, get the amendment reworked into the paperwork.

Tidy up

"While you may think you're as clean as a whistle, your landlord may not agree," she says. "It may be worth hiring a cleaning service upon move-out day just to cover all your bases. The $100 clean up may save you the aggravation of an argument and security deposit dispute down the line."

Work with your landlord

"There is no guarantee that a landlord will negotiate you breaking your lease, but maybe there is a compromise that can be met. For instance, you could help find a replacement tenant."

Mackinnon nets two in Mooseheads return

QMJHL. Halifax has now recorded at least a point in 15 straight games

PHILIP CROUCHER
philip.croucher@metronews.ca

Welcome back, Nathan MacKinnon.

The star centre for the Halifax Mooseheads made a triumphant return to the lineup on Wednesday night, recording two goals and two assists in a 6-2 victory over the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles in QMJHL action before 3,950 fans at Centre 200 in Sydney.

Mackinnon, who missed 14 games with a minor MCL injury, scored just 35 seconds into the game and then added his 30th goal of the season on the power play midway through the third.

"I was a little nervous coming in for sure and didn't know what to expect," MacKinnon said. "Scoring early kind of got it out of the way and (it's) definitely a nice way to come back."

Mackinnon also assisted on goals by Jonathan Drouin and Stefan Fournier. Drouin finished with three points to move into a tie with Lower Sackville's Ben Duffy of the Prince Edward Island Rocket for the QMJHL scoring lead.

Both players have 104 points, with Drouin playing in 19 fewer games. After Wednesday night, Drouin's point-scoring streak sits at 28 games.

Fournier finished with two goals and Dominic Beauchemin also scored.

Bryce Milson and Michael Lyle replied for the Eagles, last in the 16-team league. Cape Breton outshot the Mooseheads 39-26.

"I thought they did a good job of battling the whole game," MacKinnon said. "Hats off to them, but it's nice to get the win."

Halifax is back in action on Friday when they host the Saint John Sea Dogs at 7 p.m. They close out the regular season on Sunday at home to the Eagles.

Canadiens send Senators to shootout loss

Alex Galchenyuk and Lars Eller scored in a shootout Wednesday as the Montreal Canadiens won their fourth straight, 4-3 over the Ottawa Senators.

Eller scored in the first period and Brendan Gallagher and P.K. Subban added power-play goals in the second for Montreal (18-5-4), which played loosely in its first game at home after a five-game road trip. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NBL. Rainmen's hopes end with Mill Rats win

The Halifax Rainmen's playoff hopes are over.

In National Basketball League of Canada play on Wednesday night, the Saint John Mill Rats edged the host Oshawa Power 102-101 to officially knock the Rainmen out of post-season contention.

Halifax (19-20) needed the Mill Rats to lose their final two games of the regular season and then go out and beat the host Summerside Storm on the last day of the season on Saturday to get into the playoffs.

The victory by Saint John means the five teams are set for the NBL playoffs. The others are the Storm, Moncton Miracles, London Lightning and Windsor Express. METRO

CIS hockey. Bloodoff, Stienberg fetch awards as Huskies arrive in Saskatoon

The Saint Mary's Huskies men's hockey team has already scored two big wins without even stepping on the ice at nationals.

During the CIS men's hockey awards Wednesday in Saskatoon, third-year forward Lucas Bloodoff was named the top player in the country, while bench boss Trevor Stienburg was named top coach.

Bloodoff led the AUS conference in scoring with 38 points, including 20 goals. His 12 power-play goals were tops in the CIS.

As for Stienburg, he led

Saint Mary's to a second-place finish in the AUS with a 18-7-3 record. It's the fourth time Stienburg has been named CIS coach of the year.

The Huskies are one of six teams at nationals in Saskatoon. Action begins Thursday with Saint Mary's playing its first game Friday. METRO

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Make your own decisions today and live with the consequences. Nothing bad is going to happen at all but you must be prepared to go out on a limb and risk being the odd one out.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

If someone is giving you a hard time then by all means give them a hard time in return. But make sure you get it right as this is one of those days when too much emotion could lead to costly mistakes.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Someone who claims to be one thing is something else entirely. You are advised to take what they tell you with a large grain of salt, especially if it sounds too good to be true.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Sometimes you are too sensitive for your own good but today you will go to the other extreme. You just cannot be bothered to respond to other people's criticisms.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You need to open your eyes and be aware of the trends that are taking shape. Business and financial matters, in particular, could cause a few problems today so make sure you are in control at all times.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Friends and loved ones don't want to do what you want to do, which is frustrating. Compromise is possible but you must be serious about it. If you fail to deliver on what you promise, it could cause a rift.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Someone wants to undermine your confidence. Don't let them. Keep things in perspective today and, above all, don't let trivial matters, or trivial people, upset you.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Let the world know you are vulnerable. For too long you have given the impression that you are as cold as ice. You're not. You know it's an act. It's time other people knew it too.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Someone has deceived you and, of course, you are not in the least bit happy about it. But no matter how hard done by you feel you must not blow your top. If you do, you will only make matters worse.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You are trying too hard to live up to what other people expect of you. It's what you expect of yourself that matters, nothing more, nothing less. Be yourself, now and always.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You may have made up your mind about a personal matter but you should keep it to yourself for now. The planets indicate that your views will change radically over the next few days. Leave wriggle room.

Pisces

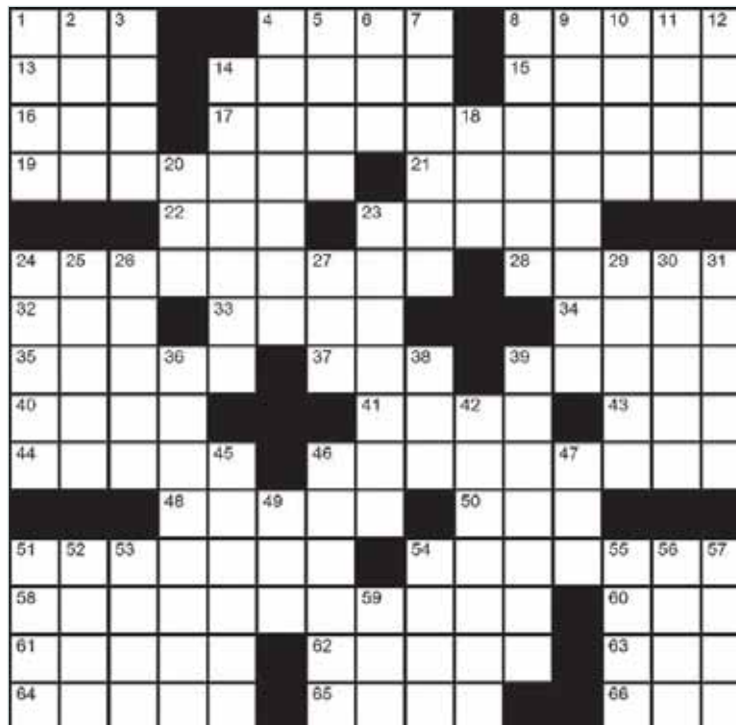

Feb. 20 - March 20

No matter how loudly someone says you are on the wrong track you must ignore them and carry on as before. Even if they are right — and they're not — it doesn't matter. All roads lead to where you need to go. SALLY BROMPTON
